

What is a Lodge Ritual Director?

A Lodge Ritual Director is responsible for providing training, education, assistance and motivation to the Brethren of his Lodge in the performance and understanding of the Standard Work and Lectures.

A ritual director works with the Master of his Lodge in concert in the planning and execution of degree work as well as opening and closing. With the Masters permission he would coordinate rehearsals, fill the chairs and coach the ritual team to excellence in everything they do.

What personal qualities should a Lodge Ritual Director possess?

He must be confident, credible, a life time learner of the Ritual and have a passion for teaching and understanding the Standard Work and Lectures.

He must believe that the Standard Work and Lectures are of vital importance to the Craft of Freemasonry and be very familiar with the Standard Work.

He must be able to motivate and instill pride in his Brethren to do the best work possible.

He must be willing, patient, and show Brotherly love in teaching the ritual even when the ritual work needs improvement.

He must be willing to teach the meaning of the ritual as well as the actual words therein contained.

What will the Ritual Director be called upon to do in the RRP program?

He will be asked to attend an orientation session for the RRP program where he will be introduced to all facets of the RRP including all materials pursuant to it.

He will be called upon to make himself very familiar with all of the materials he will receive as part of his orientation to the program. This will include the Ritual Director's Guide, Floor work guide and the information pertaining to the Meaning of the Ritual.

He will be called upon to use those materials in an effort to make his Lodge's ritual work the very best it can be.

He will have the AGL and the RRP task force as a support network for his efforts going forward.

He will receive as much help and support that he needs in timely manner.
